Home Learning Rationale

HISTORY

Home learning is an essential element of History study used to support, consolidate and extend work covered in the classroom. It will be set frequently and regularly.

In general, Foundation students will have 30 minutes of homework a week, GCSE lessons 1 hour a week, and A Level lessons 5 hours a week in addition to Directed Study Hour tasks in school.

All tasks will be set and monitored through Class Charts. The History Department staff are always available in the Department or by email if there are any queries about work that students are struggling to complete at home or independently.
